

the Agriculture at the time of the Incas :

The techniques, architecture, instruments, tools, plants :

The Incas as well as some of their predecessors and contemporaries were very good farmers, even if the tools such as chakitakllas, maquitaklla, raucana or cupana seem simple, they were very well adapted to the agricultural works of the time.

Potatoes (over 2800 varieties of native potatoes identified and more than 1300 studied.

The maïs by dozens of varieties

Quinoa (several hundreds of varieties)

the Amaranth

tarwi

Maca

The yacon etc

But there are also plants in gardens, orchards, fruit etc with;

the sachatomates

the caigua

peanuts

The lucuma,

the capuli

Cucumbers,

the calabazas

virracá

Arrach

etc.

Here at Inka Lacta ® within a rectangular Colca the products in conservation are to be seen.

Donner son avis sur la traduction