Guédelon in France, for instance, where fanatics decided to build a medieval castle of the 13th century with the tools of the time, and turned this project that seemed unreasoned at the first sight into the main source of local economy growth, becoming the first touristic point in the city of Guedelon, and the second in Bourgogne, and embodying the best pedagogic tool about this period of time.

Aubechies and Ramioul in Belgium, with Gallo-roman and prehistoric archeosites.
